New Unauthorised Biography Exposes Insider Views on Ardern's Leadership

A new unauthorised biography presents a behind-the-scenes look with unfiltered perspectives on former Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern's tenure. This is the book the critics wanted.

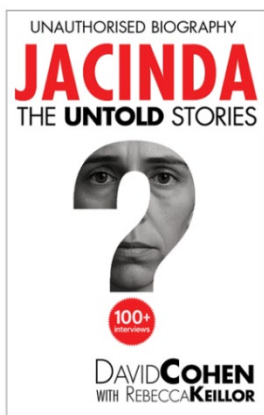

Jacinda: The Untold Stories written by journalist David Cohen with Rebecca Keillor (Centrist Publishing), is now available for pre-order, providing a timely counterpoint to Ardern's recently released memoir. It draws on over 100 interviews with politicians, journalists, academics, community leaders, frontline workers, and everyday New Zealanders.

Spanning a full year of research to separate publicity from reality, this exposé gives the reader 'fly-on-the-wall access' into uncovering hidden government statistics and evaluating key policies across major issues impacting our nation. Three chapters focus on Covid strategies, exposing many broken promises on transparency, mandates, medical regulation, and the foundational rights of New Zealanders stripped away during the covid years.

"Kindness or optics? Hype or horsepower?" asks the book, challenging the narrative around Ardern's decisions that led to lockdowns, family separations, job losses, and community division, still felt throughout the nation today.

It also examines her departure from New Zealand politics and her ongoing global influence of supposed kindness, amid shifting local landscapes.

Centrist Publishing is offering exclusive pre-order access to NZDSOS supporters before it's full release in early November 2025. Order yours now at CentristShop | CENTRIST
