RED Remembrance Day

NZDSOS Address:

Since 2022, NZDSOS has gathered each November 15th to mark Red Remembrance Day, alongside New Zealanders who value truth, conscience, and medical freedom. We are the injured, the silenced, and those who stood firm in the face of coercion.

It is a day to honour those whose lives were forever changed by the government's 'no jab, no job' mandates of 2021. It was a day that divided our nation, a day when bodily autonomy was murdered by forced compliance, and when medical ethics, political integrity, a balanced media and legal backstops all failed the people they were meant to serve.

NZDSOS initiated this day of commemoration four years ago, out of duty, to remember, to bear witness, and to demand such overreach never happens again. But also, we celebrate our resilience, work ethic and moral courage in a very dangerous time. Red is for danger, yes, but also for Braveheart courage, and for the life force that tyranny cannot extinguish. Because, make no mistake, these covid years have proven that a dark force of predatory tyranny has swept the planet, and our institutions have been turned against us.

Many who trusted official lies now live (or have died) with devastating injuries. They can suffer in silence, unheard, unseen by those meant to protect them. Their suffering can be truly awful, lethal even, and the silence around them magnifies the harm. These people, the injured, bereaved, the coerced, the forgotten, are the beating heart of Red Remembrance.

Through our work at NZDSOS, our health clinic, carefully recording our extensive lobbying of authorities, and submissions to the Royal Commission of Inquiry, we have documented the human cost of the government's covid response in detail. We also see evidence of cover-up at every level. Many thousands of New Zealanders have deaths unaccounted for. They might not all have died from the vaccine but as long as the medical profession claims befuddlement but denies vaccine causation without looking for it, we have the floor and will keep using it to speak for these people. They must not be forgotten.

With bitter irony, we note this week is shared with remembering the end of the First World War. Our vacuous politicians told us to remember the fallen, those who laid down their lives fighting tyranny, and that they must not be forgotten. Hollow, meaningless words from those who forced monumental sacrifice in the current day, and who still just watch and do nothing.

This week too we hear of perversion and corruption at the highest level of the police. Top cops who policed us through covid abused then persecuted a young woman trying to call attention, whilst prosecuting health whistleblower Barry Young, who spotted evidence of vaccine deaths and tried to help. Also, they ignored a list of suspicious deaths we took to them as the rollout started to take its toll. Our evidence is still at NZDSOS.com. We hope an investigation looks at these issues as well as the perversions and croneyism.

Peer-reviewed research confirms a terrible picture but is ignored by those paid to examine it: serious contamination in vaccine vials, systemic injury to the cardiovascular, immune and nervous systems, cancer and reproductive harm. Many independent analyses, including those by Dr Kevin McKernan, and Dr David Speicher in Canada, have discovered major foreign DNA contamination, findings that demanded urgent halt several years ago. Dr McKernan told our Royal Commission that governments have caused a cancer epidemic in their populations, and we agree the evidence is more than strong enough to make that claim. These are published, scientifically grounded concerns that expose deep failures of oversight on products that should never even have entered the market.

Some other nations are winding back some decisions and starting to acknowledge these findings. Yet New Zealand continues to look the other way. This is not just a medical crisis, it is a moral one.

Mandating an experimental product on unwilling people was an act of coercion, unethical, and deeply damaging. Silence from authorities, regulators and our government - only compounds the injustice, and the damage. Clearly this is a lockstep global strategy designed to protect the complicit.

Are we here today the only ones who are deeply morally outraged at the medical murder and maiming that continues to this day? It sometimes feels like it, but we KNOW more and more are waking to the ideological invasion. We are living in a time that future historians might well refer to as The Darkening. Because, 5 years into covid, the lights of freedom are going out. A digital prison awaits, cheer-led by people we thought we elected to serve our interests. An exaggeration? This past year we took two major cases and in each the Bill of Rights was just chunked in the gutter. The government and courts have trashed it beyond recognition

Generations of our young and vulnerable are under a perverted physical and psychological assault. They are taught climate lies and to hate themselves. We are living with a health system weakened beyond recognition, our communities plagued by unexplained illness and death. This must not become our new normal. We must not allow sickness, censorship and surveillance to define our future. Yes, we must reclaim medicine as a place of healing, honesty, and humanity, where doctors speak freely, patients are believed, and truth is valued, but this is actually a small part of the much greater war on humanity.

An ideology of greed, arrogance and entitlement has taken over the political elite, and their minions have handed over their own moral compasses - how else could they tolerate such obvious signs of suffering and unhappiness?

This year NZDSOS continues to present medical evidence that authorities have ignored, dismissed, or excluded from their narrow official frameworks. This includes research which continues to shed light on mechanisms of harms from the vaccine, some predicted by us but others not foreseen in our worst nightmares.

An example is a brand-new disease of the blood - highly abnormal rubbery white clots, never seen before, which should have caused a revolt from medicine round the globe. New Zealand doctors have led the way in analysing and understanding what might be happening, we are publishing shortly, so that a solution might later emerge.

But the Medical Council and all the Royal Colleges have been silent, seemingly believing their own nonsense that the dangerous jabs really are "zero risk", as they stated bizarrely at the start. Government lawyers inside the Medical Council rule the roost and continue to witch-hunt conscientious medics for simply doing their duty and becoming knowledge experts.

To our colleagues, we say don't be scared for your licences. They can't take them all away. Wake up and find your mojo. Fight for your patients.

When governments and regulators ignore clear safety signals, the failure to act becomes a legal issue, not just ethical. Under our law, having knowledge of serious harm but refusing to act on it, is a crime. Continuing to promote and supply unsafe products is indefensible.

Public trust is eroded to a level unseen before in New Zealand, but it is clear those in power do not care. But truth has its own momentum. As testimonies, and international data keep pouring in, it becomes ever clearer that the medical, political and legal decisions of those years will be scrutinised.

Only then can we move forward as a nation. Red Remembrance Day is the beginning, standing for everyone affected, as well as those who are yet to understand what has taken place.

We will get accountability. It is coming closer and quicker, as more evidence surfaces, more people speak up, and more New Zealanders awaken to the scale of the deception and the toll it has taken on the nation's health, with sickness now visible in every community. Read what honest health workers really see, in our Truth Project. Share them. NZDSOS will continue to work to find and tell truth, stand for medical freedom, informed consent, and the restoration of conscience to the heart of healthcare.

But we urge everyone to act now:

- Support the injured and the invisible by sharing their stories, making CARM reports, and travelling alongside them.
- Write urgently to MPs, councillors, and other decision-makers to oppose ALL the anti-human legislation coming our way.
- Attend meetings, ask questions, and demand accountability from health authorities, regulators, and government agencies.
- Contribute to community-led initiatives and fundraising efforts to sustain legal actions and advocacy for the injured.
- Read, share, and engage with independent scientific evidence to ensure the truth continues to spread.
- If you have to visit your doctor, talk to them about the harm the covid response caused. Demand they take your side, not that of the bureaucrats.

This is truly an existential war for the future of humanity. We have so much to lose by staying inactive. Please fight, so that perhaps next year Red Remembrance can be a time not just to remember, but to celebrate the rescue of our country.

Thank you.
